Police Allegedly Kick Girl, 15, In Chest

By Jean Denny

A Black mother in Barstow, California has accused the local police department of brutality when her daughter was allegedly kicked in the chest by a police officer after being stopped for speeding.

Sarah McQueen, the mother of La Tanyalena Colbert, 18, and Tarhonda Colbert, 15, said in a recent telephone interview that she is filing charges of police brutality after her daughter Tarhonda was kicked in the chest by a policeman.

La Tanyalena, also known as Tanya, was driving a friend home in her mother's car when she was stopped by a Officer Lisa Walby for speeding. "She said I was driving 35 mph in a 25 mph school zone," said Tanya.

When Walby asked for a driver's license and Tanya had none, she asked her and the three others in the car (her sister Tarhonda was one of them) to get out so she could tow the car.

Tanya said she called her mother on a nearby pay phone but she wasn't there. She said the officer then asked for her car keys and she gave them to her.

The officer searched inside of car and to Tanya's surprise found a pipe under the seat. "I didn't know it was in the car."

But Tanya said that Walby didn't believe her and placed her under arrest for carrying a concealed weapon. By this time Walby had called for back up and three male officers showed up with a police dog. Among them was a Officer Heyhirst. "He threw me up against a dumpster three or four times," said Tanya, "and then he handcuffed me."

Tanya said that's when her sister Tarhonda intervened by coming up to him to complain of the treatment of her sister Tanya. Tanya said though Heyhirst contends he only shoved her sister, she saw him take his foot and kick her in the chest and knock her back. "After he kicked her, she grabbed her chest in pain."

Another car showed up and this time a Black officer was present and Tarhonda and Tanya were handcuffed and placed in two different police cars to go to police station. Before they left, their mother showed up.

McQueen said she had received a phone call from someone who told her that her daughter was going to be given a citation for a traffic violation. "Then they hung up." She said she went looking for her daughters and when she didn't see them she went to the police station. "They told me what happened and I went to the scene."

McQueen arrived to see both daughters sitting in the police cars handcuffed and crying. She said Tarhonda was complaining of chest pain and her hands were drawn so tightly behind her back she could see her chest bulging out. "I tried to explain to the officers that she had a heart murmur and asked why they did this." She said Heyhirst said the girl came charging at him. He did, however, take the handcuffs off and handcuffed her in the front. "But they were still tight," said McQueen, "Tanya's was so tight her wrist were bleeding."

She also explained to the policeman that her daughter didn't know anything about the pipe in the car. She kept the pipe in the car for protection because she had once been attacked. But she said they ignored her and took her daughters to the police station anyway. Though McQueen was told to go home until she was notified, she followed them to the police station. When she arrived McQueen said Walby and another officer were very hostile toward her. "They had dogs and kept their hands on their guns at all times."

Realizing she couldn't see her daughters, McQueen called her minister, Reverend Wayman Brown, pastor of Union Missionary Baptist Church, a well known minister in the community. He came to the police station. Brown said he arrived and attempted to give morale support. He waited with the mother until her daughters were released. "They were both upset and Tarhonda was in pain."

When McQueen was finally allowed to see her daughters Tarhonda was released in her custody but considered hostile. "I had to sign papers to that affect," Tanya was booked, finger printed, and put in a cell.

McQueen said she took photos of Tarhonda's bruises and then took her to Barstow Community Hospital in the Emergency Room.

She told them what happened and they filled out a report. "They asked me was I going to file a complaint of brutality on a minor and I told them that I would." Hospital personnel contacted in emergency confirmed that Tarhonda was seen and released on that day. They would not give name of physician or describe condition of patient.

According to McQueen, the doctor said Tarhonda had multiple contusions (bruises) on breast and chest. "She is still having muscle spasms." More test are scheduled in a few weeks to confirm whether Tarhonda has a broken collar bone.

Afterward McQueen was contacted by Police Chief Sessions and asked her to come and see him. Rev. Brown accompanied her and they saw a Lt. Sedillo at the police station who claimed he didn't know anything about it. "I thought that if any incident like this occurs, an officer should get a report." Brown said he encouraged McQueen to stop talking and she took forms for complaints.

When Sgt. Gibson, who is officer in charge of press releases, was notified of the incident by Black Voice News staff he said he did not know what happened. He said he would inquire about it but did not notify news staff before press time.

McQueen, who describes herself as a God fearing woman who doesn't like trouble said nothing like this has ever happened to her and expresses concern over how ugly this has gotten.

Brown said nothing like this has ever happened since he's lived in Barstow for the last 15 years. "We're talking about a man hitting a child. He's trained to use force as the last resort." Brown said he felt he (Heyhirst) could have been more authoritative.

McQueen said she's been getting calls from the mayor, the District Attorney and the NAACP. McQueen said she plans to take it as far as it can go. "I hope we can settle out of court."

America's 911 Black Wake-Up Call

By Tony Brown

Last week, Michael McGee and a band of his Black Panther Militia stormed the stage of a live "Good Morning America" taping in Milwaukee.

This week you can see the Milwaukee alderman with me on public TV stations promising White America a more violent confrontation in 1995. Over the last six years as a member of Milwaukee's Common Council Mike McGee has worn a bag over his head and blown a whistle to disrupt meetings to protest racism. Now he's talking about blowing up what he calls "White life" in Milwaukee — unless $300 million (he upped the ante from $100 million) is invested in that city's Black community. The Mayor of Milwaukee says McGee has a demented mind and Whites in Milwaukee generally see him as more a publicity hound than a physical threat. But he's been taken seriously by the major media.

"60 Minutes" has featured him and his threats — as has The Washington Post and The New York Times — "1,001 ways," he says, to direct violence against Whites. For example, with a Black militia of several hundred that he has formed, he would roll burning tires down onto freeways that carry White suburbanites and conduct terrorist strikes at major facilities in Milwaukee. McGee, who served in Vietnam, has now taken his threats of urban guerilla warfare on the road. He is going from city to city, asking Blacks to raise arms and prepare for violence, to disrespect the law and to forget hope and self-responsibility. He says he's America's 911 wake-up call and he's started the timer on his

King Incident Spurs Need To Rebuild Public Trust

By Dick Williams

It's been said that all of us can remember exactly where we were and what we were doing when we first learned of the assassination of President John F. Kennedy. Professional law enforcement officers have the same reaction to their first exposure to the King tape.

Each of us recognized that nothing King could have done justified what we were seeing, and we knew immediately that King had become a victim. Our hearts went out to him, even as we hurt for our profession.

We realized that an incident such as this would destroy the efforts of thousands of officers who had built confidence in neighborhoods where they serve. We recognized that even though this incident happened in a single neighborhood, many would perceive that the incident had happened in their neighborhood.

We also knew that the loss in public confidence would take much longer to rebuild than it did to lose. But even as we watched the tragic tape, most law enforcement officers had already begun thinking about rebuilding that public trust. The tape has been played. Perhaps doomsday clock of violence. I told McGee that, in my opinion, he and his militia will never get out of the gate because he either is already infiltrated by government spies — or soon will be. Furthermore, the White bigots are better armed and will welcome the opportunity to declare violence on Black people — not just McGee's militia.

And speaking of his militia, are they armed? If so, they can't possibly best this country's disciplined military. I see innocent more frequently than that of the Challenger disaster. The incident has grown beyond itself. It has brought to the public attention an ongoing battle of philosophies and politics between a prominent mayor and police chief.

As we had feared, others began to use the incident in an apparent attempt to gain notoriety or political advantage. Public figures from across the land treated the incident as though it had occurred in their city and gave advice to the people of Los Angeles on how they should solve their problem.

Even entertainers became embroiled in the incident; an obscure rap group is now attempting to gain the rights to use the tape as part of one of its soon-to-be released songs.

Additionally, those who view law enforcement as an enemy have used this incident to call for further shackling of those who protect our freedoms. Some have made an attempt to gain extra scrutiny of law enforcement by the courts.

I fear that what may be lost in all the rhetoric and opportunism is the need for law enforcement, and indeed the need for society itself, to rededicate itself to values and people dying and maimed if McGee is serious about his threats; and he leaves no doubt that he is serious. Would it not be great if McGee were as angry- about Black; people spending 95% of their income with Whites and other nonBlacks? Besides, it is paradoxical to talk about killing people because you give them all of your money. And what about the business of helping us reinvest in ourselves? I welcomed McGee to the econo-centric wing of our struggle, but he refused. He wants guns and death. I hope we can make enough progress in economic development for poor Black people — not the Black rich that does all of the benefiting from affirmative action, quotas and set-asides — soon enough to convince McGee to join a movement of prosperity and life.

obey the law or rules only to avoid penalties.

The King incident may have become a media event because such conduct is, in fact, unusual. Many report that there is a higher rate of misconduct among other professional groups, such as the clergy, educators, politicians and others, than there is among law enforcement.

Even if that's so, we in law enforcement can take little comfort in it. The public has given us tremendous responsibility. They have allowed us to restrict citizens' liberty and, in extreme cases, to take life without benefit of judicial process. We feel that responsibility far too heavily to take comfort in the fact that fewer police officers may behave inappropriately than members of other groups.

I can't speak for other law enforcement organizations, but I can speak for my own: We will continue to move in the direction of greater responsiveness to the public.

We won't be waiting for you to come to us; we'll be going to you to find out the level and types of service that you desire. We'll continue to be responsible.

What Is The Status Of The Civil Rights Bill?

By William Reed

What can the national African-American community do to assure passage of this vital piece of anti-discrimination legislation?

Robert Allen, chairman of the board of American Telephone and Telegraph (AT&T), might not know the current status, but is a good man for blacks to have involved in the designing of this legislation. Allen had been heading up a coalition of leading corporate executives who were interested in fashioning a compromise provision to the Civil Rights Act of 1991 until the White House, and the members of the Fair Employment Coalition, pressured him and the Business Roundtable to back off. Leading civil rights groups were in concert, and cooperation, with Allen and efforts to reach a suitable job discrimination compromise to the bill that would've made it acceptable to Big Business, and to Democratic and Republican legislators. Before he had to back off, the meetings were about to bear fruit on the issue of monetary damages for victims of intentional discrimination.

Blocking the progress of the bill is the Fair Employment Coalition, a well-funded lobbying effort that has the ear of the White House. It represents the political interests of U.S. Chamber of Commerce members, the National Association of Wholesale Distributors, the National Association of Manufacturers, and other small-to medium size business groups. On the other hand, the white knight Business Roundtable group is made up of bigger corporations, such as AT&T and American Express. AT&T's Allen serves as head of the Roundtable's human relations task force and has been in the negotiations along with James Robinson of the American Express Company.

Sacramento Get Priorities Right

The current budget crises that faces the state is there because of the lack of appropriate leadership in Sacramento. They have neglected to manage the business affairs of the taxpayers and are attempting to hide their inadequacies by raising taxes and not setting the proper priorities.

For example, we spend $20,000 per year to lock a young person up in jail and continue to build more prisons to house them. We spend only $3,000 a year to educate and train a person to become a good and productive, taxpaying citizen, and are now considering taking away a measure that would insure educational success. We cannot find a cure for cancer, AIDS, ect. by purchasing more land for cemeteries to bury the dead. We must invest in research, physicians, and scientist. Likewise we must invest in our youth.

The voters in November 1990 passed Proposition 98, which would insure a certain level of funding for public schools. Governor Wilson is proposing to suspend what the voters voted in.

If we are to have a well trained workforce of tomorrow, we must invest in the training today. If a farmer wishes to reap a crop of food in the fall, he must cultivate and plant seeds in the spring.

We are recommending that education be the priority in budget considerations.

DEAR EDITOR:
Due to years of Crime and Racism worsening, in the city of Los Angeles, CA instead Of improving, and violence becoming the number one psychological cause to stress out, and drugs becoming the only way to lose out, someone has not done a job because of their stature or their inability to leave. Then that person or persons are incapable of functioning to the best of their ability, or stress gets the best of them, maybe it's time for someone else to be the only one that can "liberate" the city. Some people maybe saw the weakness in the city govt's power. These people saw their weakness and took full advantage of them. In the case of "Chief of Police" Darryl Gates, either the subordinates involved in the recent beating of an unarmed man were under such stress that they could not function as officers like in so many other cases involving brutality, or for the longest time has someone else inside the police dept. itself helped to undermine the power structure.

Whatever the case, the problem on either end has not been resolved, and maybe it's time for it (the problem) to be taken care of and cleaned up. Maybe in the near future the gov't in charge will leave politics and religion out of the back room, and foresight and business in it.

Sincerely Frederick W. Blair

USHERS MOOD

by Gerri Jones

It's Sunday morning, and it feels good to be alive.
The ushers are at church early,
to greet everyone as they arrive.

Ushers are expected to be, always in a good mood. They are to be nice,
even if the guest are rude.

Oh no! here comes "Mother Mean", and she's ready for a fight.
I bet she slept real bad, and stayed awake all night.

I'll swallow my pride,
and greet her with a smile.
But she rushes right by,
like a crocodile swimming the NILE.

My shoes were polished, but she knocked off the shine.
With her big heavy feet,
I would imagine a size nine.

I keep my mood in check,
by having a little prayer.
After "Brother Hurry-Up" rushes in,
I'm ready to pull out my hair.

The church bus just pulled up,
and six hyper kids are loose.
Two senior ushers try to catch them, but the kids run like mongoose.

I love my ushering,
because I'm serving the lord.
By the time the children are calmed,
I'm about ready for the mental ward.

Church prayer has started,
and the doors are closed.
Some late arrivals push them open, almost hitting me in the nose.

I maintain my peace,
and try to give them a grin,
but I'm hit in the back,
as two more push their way in.

My faith is strong,
and my mind is clear.
But if by chance my smiles fades,
my name someone will surely smear.

Every pew in the church is filled, and there's not a seat anywhere.
some folks won't listen to reason,
you better just find them a chair.

The ushers are given instruction, and everyone goes to their post.
The air conditioner isn't cooling right, and the ushers began to roast.

"Key Usher" has an attitude, and the "Usher-In-Charge" isn't talking.

The "Door Keeper" gives a signal, and two ushers are sleep walking.

Its time for the offering,
and fifteen members want change.
We are three ushers short,
and a money tray drops in the exchange.

The pastor looks over his glasses,
and the choir hits a high note.
The church mothers start to pointing,
as the deacons clear their throat.

The ushers recover nicely,
and the problems are smoothed out.
The choir start the Usher's song, now you'll see what I'm about.

The pianist looks to the rear, and the pastor start to smile.
The ushers start to line up,
then we all step into the isle.

The christian spirit is lifted,
and the members began to clap.
We are greeted with warm acceptance,
as I turn those comers with a snap.

People's Choice Nominee's Honored At Reception

The Black Voice News gave a reception for the 1991 Gospel Award Nominees on Sunday, May 19, from 4 to 6 p.m. The reception was held in the newspapers' Riverside office.

This event was well attended and provided an opportunity for all of the nominees to fellowship together. Tahlia McCollum, 11, a nominee in the Youth Vocalist category, very much enjoyed singing gospel music along with the other nominees. She stated, "It was fun singing with a group of people that I never rehearsed with. The Spirit just moved us, and we all started making a joyful noise unto the Lord." Sharron Lewis, one of the organizers for the People's Choice Gospel Awards, was so inspired by the nominees' impromptu performance that she added them to the June 1, program.

The reception was highlighted with a performance by the Rainbow Performing Group, featuring Maudie Gooden as the lead vocalist. Backup singers were Pratis Boyd, Jr., Annette Collins, Tahlia McCollum and Sandra Wilson. Under the musical direction of Eldred Smith, the group sang the original theme song from its upcoming Christian musical, "The Salt of the Earth." Pastor Ray Turner of Temple Baptist Church in San Bernardino, gave the invocation and the benediction.

The program was concluded with each nominee receiving a certificate of appreciation from Hardy and Cheryl Brown. The certificate was specifically for "outstanding dedication to the furthering of God's word through music."

All community members who desire to show their support and appreciation to the 1991 Gospel Award nominees can do so by attending this year's June 1, awards ceremony at the San Bernardino High School

WHAT TYPE OF CROWN WILL WE GET IN HEAVEN?

QUESTION: Dear Pastor Woods, The Bible talks about us receiving a crown in heaven. Do we receive this crown based on our works here on earth?

KLR,

ANSWER: The Apostle Paul spoke of a crowning process that would take place after death during his final writings to the young pastor Timothy: "For I am now ready to be offered, and the time of my departure is at hand. I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith.

Henceforth there is laid up for me 'a crown of righteousness', which the Lord, the righteous judge shall give me at that day and not to me only, but unto all them also that love his appearing" (2nd Timothy 4:6-8). A

We Are Failing Our Kids

"Children Now" is a "non-partisan, statewide organization whose mission is to-improve the lives" of California's children.

In 1989 the organization compared California with the other 49 states. Our state ranked among the worst in its treatment of children.

In health care and nutrition, education, safety and security - you name it - California as a state is guilty of child neglect and abuse.

What a sad, pathetic record for the most affluent state in the nation - for a state with an economy that would rank it sixth or seventh in the world if it were an independent nation. (By contrast, we are at or close to the top in spending on services to everybody but children.)

Most people born before the 1960s - or 1970s in many places - have no idea how rough it is to be a child today.

Compared with their parents' generation, today's six- to 14-year olds are twice as likely to be murdered and three times as likely to commit suicide - before they reach their 18th birthdays.

Those comparative figures, from the National Center for Health Statistics, are grim enough. The raw numbers are appalling. In 1990, according to the Children's Defense Fund in Washington, D.C.:

- Over 3,600 children died and 9,000 more were wounded by guns.
- At least 2,100 children killed themselves.
- Nearly 10,000 youngsters died from malnutrition and other effects of poverty.
- More than 650,000 were victims of abuse or neglect.

• Over a million saw their parents divorce. (One in five California children now lives in a single-parent home.)

• Close to 80,000 children were arrested for drug abuse or possession; another 160,000 were arrested for drinking or drunk driving.

No suburban or rural Californian should read those numbers with any complacency. The horrors they represent are as real in Laguna Hills as in Los Angeles, as real in Orinda as in Oakland.

They're real, for example, at South Pasadena High School. Drawn mostly from affluent families, the students of South Pas High score in the top ten percent on achievement tests; 86 percent go on to college; only 2.4 percent drop out.

But, according to the Los Angeles Times, drugs are common at South Pas: "LSD is readily available for $5 a hit and drinking is widespread."

And two months ago three South Pas students were murdered following "a 10-hour drug and alcohol binge ... in a wealthy Pasadena enclave."

Tragedies happen to our children and youth every day and everywhere. They result from the soaring tides of crime, violence, and poverty that are reshaping and disfiguring our society.

'One Stable Institution'

Our public schools have always served to acculturate children - to help immigrants as well as the native born to cope with changes in American society.

The transformation of the family alone would have put enormous strain on our schools. But the social change of the past two decades has made the job of educating our young infinitely more complex. Children distracted by domestic discord and social upheaval require more and more individual attention in the classroom.

In California, at least, teachers cannot give them that attention: Our classrooms are the most crowded in the nation. One in six students does not speak English as a first language. In some districts, as many as two of every three students will change schools at least once every year.

For our children and youth, the public schools are the one stable institution in California and the nation. Just as our young are the hope of our society, our schools are the hope of our children.

What You Can Do

Unfortunately, the State of California's budget deficit threatens to undermine our schools - to make things worse rather than better.

The governor's proposal to suspend Proposition 98 - education's minimum funding guarantee - would devastate our schools. Even some friends of education, in the legislature, are struggling with the many competing demands for state money - and are looking for ways to limit education spending.

Nor is the governor's much publicized "prevention" effort anything but tokenism. He proposes to spend $85 million on programs to avert drug, crime, and other problems. That works out to $17 a year for each student in our public schools.

As the richest state in the nation, California cannot afford to deny its children a decent education.

Can you do anything?

Yes. You can write, phone, or visit your governor and legislators. You can tell them to make our children - their education, health, and security - the top priority of state government.

And you can hold them accountable at the polls - if you're registered to vote.

Bethune Cntr. Continues 22 Yr. Tradition

For the past 22 years the Inland Empire Section of NCNW has been involved in some kind of youth programming. In the sixties it was the Checkmate program, a volunteer effort which trained youth in convalescent hospital, libraries and offices. In the seventies the organization received funding for the Creative Youth program, which built on the Checkmate program and went much farther and after an dormant period of many years, the Bethune Center was born.

"Things were getting worse for youth in the community and NCNW members became concerned that something had to be done. It was Wilmer Carter, former Creative Services Director, who wrote a state grant to address the problem." Said, Debra Cooper, the Bethune Center Director.

The center provides training in the area of Pre-Employment skills. The grant is for high risk youth ages 14-21. Youth who have dropped out of school, teen parents, high absentee, anyone who is a minority. However this year the operations have included Anglo students as well. Cooper says offsite classes are being held at Hartman Center, Bloomington High, Milor, Zapantic, and the Cottage.

The government grant gives a 10% figure that can include youth who do not meet the criteria. Cooper says, the label high risk, is the name the government puts on the youth. She feels it only creates problems for them to be labeled. She says, "these are Bethune students, the cream of the crop."

corporations in the Roundtable can better shoulder, and control, discrimination lawsuits than Can the smaller, less than 50-employee firms represented by the Chamber.

Based on the long-time lobbying of the Fair Employment Coalition and help from Chief of Staff, John Sununu, the White House has its mind set on vetoing the current bill. The official line is based on a premise that "if the Democratic-sponsored civil rights bill is adopted, employers would be forced to hire and promote fixed numbers of women and minorities in order to avoid lawsuits." Black Americans, and other supporters of fairness in the workplace, should be interested in seeing that Allen and the Roundtable get their points across to the congressional framers of this legislation. If not, blacks may end up with no bill and no recourse in the American system of institutional racism.

Allen has cited a lack of support from Congress' ranking politicians as the reason that his group halted talks that were on the verge of positive compromise. "The political process in Washington is giving signals that they don't want us involved. It's clear that a lot of people want to sabotage the process that we've started," Allen has said. If African-Americans want some type of legislation enacted that will, at least, get us on more level ground in the American workplace, we have to let our public servants know that we want Allen and his corporate players back at the table.

If concerned blacks move to action, all may not be lost. Allen has said that he, and 65 Roundtable chief executives, will "withdraw to the sidelines unless we are invited back into the process." All Blacks, in addition to those who are Democratic activists, and especially the National Black Republican Council, headed by Fred Brown; and the Council of 100 Black Republicans, headed by Milton Binns should take the initiative to get Allen and the

Roundtable, back to the table and assure that: 1) Black employment stops being double that of whites; 2) More blacks get into board, and policy-and-decision making positions; and

3) Congress and the White House start to develop equitable black employment patterns themselves. The telephone numbers are: Congress and the Senate (202) 224-3121; White House domestic affairs (202) 456-7140; the Business Roundtable (202) 872-1260; and Republican National Committee (202) 863-8500.

The contract for the program funded under the State Job Training Act is to train 112 students a year, Cooper exceeds this every year because the need is so great. Some years they haven't even been compensated for the 150 they work with.

The program trains them, in the areas of mock interviews, video taping, panel interviews, work maturity, (how to keep the job) and job specific skills, such as use of the copy machine, adding machine, etc. There are 8 weeks of training then students are sent out on interviews. Many of the students are hired in the areas of fast foods, sales and retail, parks and recreation, movie theaters and seasonal work like the Orange Show. The most desirable job this year is the movie theater, last year it was working in the Mall. The least desirable job is in fast food.

Although, Cooper places about 50% of the students, she encourages them to go back to school so they will not have to be in an entry level job for ever. "These are entry level jobs. I don't want them to be satisfied with the jobs we get. Five years ago we could get "youth jobs" now displaced home-makers, senior citizens, unemployed adults are seeking those jobs so it is very competitive. My goal is to see them go back to school to get more skills."

Congratulations to graduating students

A PETITION has been filed by SCOTTY D. HILL, Public administrator of Riverside County in the Superior Court of California, County of Riverside.
The PETITION requests that SCOTTY D. HILL, Public administrator of Riverside County be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent.

A HEARING on the petition will be held on date 6/10/91 at 9:30 a.m. In Dept. 9 located at 4050 Main Street, Riverside, CA 92501
IF YOU OBJECT to the granting of the petition, you should appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney.
IF YOU ARE A CREDITOR or a contingent creditor of the deceased, you must file your claim with the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed by the court within four months from the date of first issuance of letters as provided in section 9100 of the California Probate Code. The time for filing claims will not expire before four months from the hearing date noticed above.
YOU MAY EXAMINE the file kept by the court. If you are a person interested in the estate, you may file with the court a formal Request for Special Notice of the filing of an inventory and appraisal of estate assets or of any petition or accounts as provided in section 1250 of the California Probate Code.
